SCENARIO

Tri Vananda introduces a multigenerational well-living community anchored by luxury residential villas and world-class wellness offerings. Residents and guests will have access to an array of exceptional amenities, including a Health Resort by Clinique La Prairie, PATAMA Wellness, organic farm-to-table dining, nature reserves, community gathering spaces, and wellness-focused programming. With residential villas ranging from two to four bedrooms and prices starting from approximately USD $2.1 million, Tri Vananda is set to redefine luxury wellness living in Asia. Today, Tri Vananda is home to Residential Villas, The Farm & JAMPA, and the Community House & Wetlands. In late 2026, the community will welcome the Health Resort by Clinique La Prairie, followed by PATAMA Wellness and the Tri Vananda Farm House in 2027

Phuket has become one of the world's leading luxury lifestyle and wellness destinations, attracting affluent travelers, investors, and second-home buyers from around the globe. With the upcoming opening of Clinique La Prairie's first Southeast Asian Health Resort and the continued expansion of Tri Vananda's wellness ecosystem, the destination is well positioned to increase its visibility and attract new potential investors, homeowners, and wellness-minded consumers alike.

VKPR represents Trisara and has helped to spear head the PR communications for the North American market. If selected as your agency, Victoria King Public Relations will embark on a highly targeted public relations campaign designed to introduce Tri Vananda to targeted North American press and potential buyers. We will leverage our current media work with Trisara, when applicable, to capitalize on media opportunities but ensuring the each property still received dedicated and curated coverage. The agency will craft specialized story angles and pitches to present the project to an expanded media base throughout North America. We will work with A-list media contacts to ensure that key placements appear in national and regional outlets, both print and digital. Our target list will be comprehensive and designed to penetrate key luxury, wellness, real estate, business, and lifestyle media, reaching affluent consumers, investors, and prospective homeowners.

What follows are some general tactics and ideas for the campaign.

Victoria King Public Relations

NATIONAL MEDIA RELATIONS

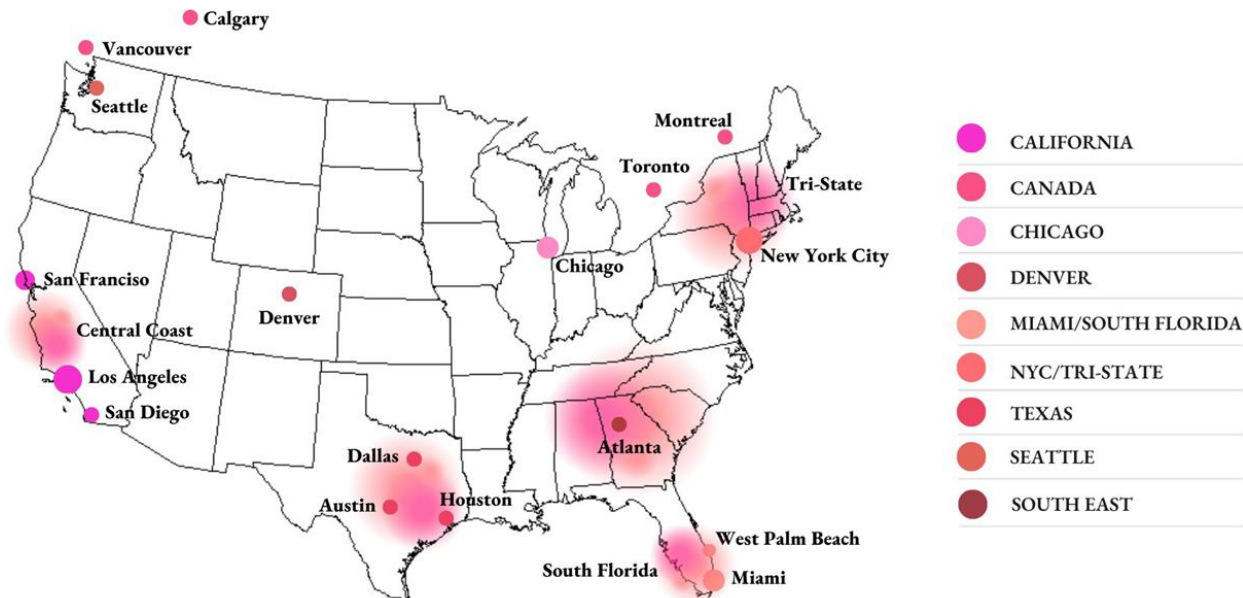

VKPR has continually cultivated strong relationships with impactful national and regional media outlets and editors over the years. The agency has developed a nationwide presence that offers limitless outreach. This includes consistent outreach to affluent feeder markets throughout the West, Northwest, Midwest, Southwest, Northeast and Southeast. VKPR has a satellite office in New York City, staffed with senior-level account directors. The agency also covers the Canadian market as part of our PR outreach.

INTERNATIONAL MEDIA

Victoria King has spent considerable time in Europe over the years and has cultivated a list of American media contacts who are based in Europe and who contribute to US outlets. This has enabled the agency to expand overall outreach for the VKPR portfolio. These contacts may be utilized as needed as often it is more cost effective to send a writer from Europe to Asia than from the US. We also work with a limited number of US press based in Asia, who contribute to US outlets as well. These contacts can all be utilized.

KEY AFFLUENT MARKETS AND MEDIA HUBS

The North American media market is large and diverse. Regional outlets in affluent areas are just as important to target as the top national media outlets. VKPR works with the press and select influencers throughout North America to ensure our messaging reaches a wide range of outlets.

TRAVEL TRENDS

VKPR follows travel trends on an ongoing basis as this is helpful when forming impactful messaging, story content and pitches for the media. Below is a sample of relevant trends on behalf of Tri Vananda.

Longevity Living

Longevity and preventive healthcare are increasingly becoming sought-after real estate amenities as high-net-worth buyers prioritize long-term wellness and proactive health management. Residential communities are responding by integrating services such as concierge medical practices, on-site physicians and nurse practitioners, advanced diagnostics, longevity clinics, telemedicine, and personalized health coaching.

Sustainable Design

Sustainability is cementing itself a defining trend in luxury real estate. Buyers are drawn to properties and communities built with natural, local materials, carbon-neutral or LEED-certified infrastructure, and developments that actively support conservation or rewilding efforts, where adventure and environmental stewardship go hand in hand.

Aging in Place

As luxury buyers increasingly view their homes as long-term investments and multigenerational gathering places, aging-in-place considerations are becoming a key factor in purchasing decisions. Buyers are seeking residences that support comfort, independence, and quality of life over the years, with features such as accessible design, proximity to leading medical institutions, healthcare concierge services, and wellness offerings tailored to evolving needs.

Dual-Purpose Ownership

A growing trend in real estate is dual-purpose ownership—where properties serve both as personal escapes and income-generating assets. Buyers are investing in boutique eco-lodges, luxury adventure rentals, and fractional or co-ownership models in high-demand destinations, maximizing both lifestyle and return.

INITIATIVES AND ACTION STEPS

1. Announcement to VKPR media contacts

VKPR will announce Tri Vananda to the US Market to generate media interest and story coverage. This announcement will be personalized and sent to a targeted list of key media contacts throughout North America. 4. Press Releases/News Pitching

VKPR will write releases and news pitches throughout the campaign to highlight new offerings. We suggest these releases are sent throughout the course of the campaign to assure Tri Vananda is kept top of mind for feature coverage as well as round up stories and award rankings.

5. Roundups, Front-of-book Placements and Interviews

VKPR monitors editorial calendars and utilizes relationships with editors to secure smaller front-of-book news mentions and encourage inclusion in round-up stories on the latest travel trends. Known amongst the travel/lifestyle media as a “go-to” agency for hospitality trends/updates, Tri Vananda will be part of our daily media conversations and pitching efforts. The agency also coordinates interviews with a spokesperson from the executive team for coverage in travel, lifestyle, business, and travel trade publications, and podcasts. We will use a dedicated spokesperson for these meetings/interview.

6. Press Visits

Identify top press to visit this development in exchange for dedicated features coverage about the development. This could be done as one off media visits or with a series of small press FAMS to further showcase Tri Vananda and all of its offerings.

7. Strategic Brand and Influencer Partnerships

Develop targeted media and influencer strategy centered on high-impact storytelling. Selectively collaborate with influencers and content creators who focus on real estate/communal living, wellness, sustainability to create impactful story content, reaching targeted HNW audiences. Explore strategic partnerships to expand overall awareness and visibility.

8. U.S. Media Meetings

VKPR regularly plans media missions in key markets to pitch and present all VKPR clients to top editors and journalists. Our outreach covers all of North America. We have a satellite office in NYC as well and are in daily contact with key press throughout the Eastern states. The West Coast team would help to further this message to other regional markets such as Texas, Chicago, and the Western United States. Victoria King also attends ILTM in Cannes each December as well as LE Miami in June and Virtuoso in August, so we leverage these trade shows to expand our media reach.

9. Press Office Liaison

VKPR will respond to all media inquiries on behalf of Tri Vananda and act upon all requests promptly. We will act as an extension of your in-house team. We are aware of upcoming features in related media with a luxury focus and will work to ensure that Tri Vananda is included and featured in these articles. We will work in tandem with your Sales and Marketing team to ensure consistent messaging and a team approach to leveraging all media opportunities. We will collect and monitor clips, write and disseminate press-worthy news, supply images to editors, coordinate press visits, arrange media meetings and provide a thorough recap of our efforts bi-monthly.

10. Award Rankings and Awards

We will submit the community for consideration in relevant trade and design awards. We would liaise with both the architect and the designer to create a list of such awards to target as gaining this recognition will further credibility.

KEY STORY IDEAS

VKPR closely monitors emerging trends to inform media outreach and develop timely, relevant story pitches. As trends continue to evolve, we will regularly refresh our pitching efforts.

One of the most unique aspects of VKPR is that Victoria King personally supervises each account in the office. With over 35 years of experience in the luxury hotel and resort arena, Victoria is well versed in the hospitality world and brings a wealth of experience and guidance to team. Ms. King would personally oversee this PR campaign along with our senior team members Julia Kent, based in California, and Erin Diard, based in New York. We would utilize our teams on both coasts, as well as our Account Coordinator, Karla Virgen, to divide the PR work and reach additional media.

Both Erin and Julia bring extensive experience in working with luxury travel and real estate media across VKPR's portfolio. Erin helps lead the Chable Residences and Armani Residences Masaryk accounts, along with help from Julia. Julia also leads the Trisara account, so she is well versed with Phuket as well as the Montara Hospitality Group as a whole and has visited JAMPA and the farm so she's seen some of Tri Vananda.

At VKPR we work as a team and once retained as your agency, we would use the skills of our account team to divide the PR work amongst our Account Executives in NY as needed.

REPORTING METHODS AND EVALUATIONS

Unlike many other sales and marketing tactics, it can be challenging to measure the direct results of brand awareness and sales leads through public relations efforts. We encourage your sales team to ask potential buyers how they discovered Tri Vananda to help track ROI. Many real estate placements will directly result in qualified leads, and that is our goal. At VKPR, we also send a comprehensive quarterly report with a detailed breakdown of all public relations actions and initiatives. Press clippings are sent to clients as they appear. Traditional earned public relations efforts are best quantified with advertising value equivalents when available.

BUDGET

VKPR believes we are eminently qualified to represent Tri Vananda as public relations counsel. We suggest a one-year minimum agreement, which can be extended of course.

Staff Time

VKPR prefers to charge all clients on a monthly retainer and to that effect, we suggest a monthly fee of $5,500. This all-inclusive fee also includes all account work for the brief outlined.

Monthly Out-of-Pocket Expenses

Out-of-pocket expenses are billed to our clients with no markup. These costs are minimal and include travel requested by the client and entertainment for the media. Larger out-of-pocket charges are approved by the client in advance and can be billed directly to you if so desired. We charge an annual fee of approximately $400 to cover our database system and clip monitoring. Media missions to NY, Miami and Los Angeles would be part of the monthly fee. However, all expenses related to these events would be budgeted separately to cover the entertainment and travel expenses required.

Additional fees for the below should be considered:

- Flights/hotel accommodations for press previews
